

LEFT FIELD
VENTURES

« Vampires » by Vincent Lannoo

SYNOPSIS (english)

A film crew ventures amidst a family of vampires to make a documentary.

They seek answers to the crucial questions we all ask ourselves...

Who are they? Do they drink anything other than blood?
How do they manage their social life?
Can they sleep, dream, die, feel feelings, eat garlic?
And, especially, is Dracula still around?

After several weeks in the company of this family of four and their friends, foes and neighbors, our brave little crew finds the answers, and a lot more...

They will find themselves at the heart of a family drama that takes the friendly vampire clan all the way to Quebec. Montreal will be the theater of profound mutations that will change the international vampire community forever, and ever.

The community we discover through this film is strange indeed, yet so endearing.

This strange society is, in the end, not so alien to us as we might think.
